ddison W. Hoyt was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Valgering, on an order issued by Judge dman, of the Superior Court, in an action brought against him by Leslie Crouch to recover $20,000 damages allenation of the affections of his wife, Mary S. Crouch. Hoyt, who is but twenty-one years was held in $1,000 ball, which as yet he has been unable to furnish.

Mr. Crouch, the plaintiff in the action, is a real estate broker, with an office at West One Hundred and Twentyfifth street. He resides at 259 West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street. Crouch has resided in Harlem for twenty years, and is very well known in iness and social circles there.

Crouch and his wife were married March 15, 1883. Mrs. Crouch is thirtyfour years old and is described as a very attractive woman.

In his complaint Mr. Crouch swears that for the past eight months his wife has treated him with much coldness and has retused to go out on pleasure trips with him, whereas before she was sed to go. He says that without keep away from him, when she had always been most affectionate.

The change in Mrs. Crouch's detowards her husband, the latter lieges, began shortly after he consented at the request of his nephew, to take into his house to board Addison W. The anti-toxine treatment rests on the following facts. It has been found that disease and recovers from it, that that disease an person cannot contract that disease again for a greater or less length of time. Many infectious diseases are known to be caused by specific germs. Death from an infectious disease is not caused by the germ of that disease, but by a poision (toxine) created by the germ in diphtheria, the Klebs-Loeffler bacilli of the disease create a poision which, when absorbed from the throat by the body, causes death.

bacilli of the disease create a poison which, when absorbed from the throat by the body, causes death.

The reason why a person who has recovered from an infectious disease cannot "take" that disease again for a period of time is because there has been created in the body of that person an anti-toxine, some substance which neutralizes the poison (toxine) of the disease, just as acid neutralizes an alkali.

This is occause the look of the poison created by the bacilli. In other words, the body has in it the anti-toxine.

Dr. Koch has found that if large animals, such as horses and cows, be given small doses of diphtheria bacilli they become slightly sick. Giving them another dose after they get well, and then another and another, there comes a time when no dose of diphtheria bacilli will make them sick. They have then developed in the blood the anti-toxine substance, whatever this is, which will neutralize the poison of diphtheria.

The blood of these animals then becomes an antidote to this poison. It is drawn off in such quantities as will not impair the animals, and may be used y at once on a person who has just contracted the disease. As, however, the injection of the blood of an animal into a man would create a fever, the serum an any would create a fever, the serum and the two girls found in the place were arrested. In social circles he is regarded as the pink of propriety. He was never known to imbibe anything stronger than a seltzer frappe until last night, when he branched off to absinthe cocktails. The results were disastrous.

Mrs. Barnett, who occupies a flat on the second story of the Delaware, said to-day that Morrison and a friend named Keller dropped into her place at about 11 o'clock. She used to know himbut had not seen him for a year. Morrison and Keller went into the front parlor. She was in the dining-room with a couple of friends. As she was going through the hall to the front room she met Keller coming to the rear of the house. He said they had been drinking absinthe cocktails, and they had not agreed with him. As Mrs. Barnett reached the parlor door, she saw Morrison sitting on the window sill. In another instant he threw up his arms and dove head first into the darkness.

She covered her face with her hands and screamed. The usual Tenderioln crowd, to the number of about a thousand, gathered around the prostrate form on the sidewalk. Morrison was unconscious and bleeding. An officer, attracted by Mrs. Barnett's screams, sent a hurry call to Roosevet; Hospital for an ambulance. State constitutional action, and have a house-cleaning.

Mr. Criswold offered an amendment to exempt reformatories, and made a long and vigorous speech in favor of prohibiting the work in State prisons, but leaving out the reformatories, because they were schools.

Mr. Pratt hoped that Mr. Griswold's amendment would prevail, or eise that the entire proposition of Mr. McDonough be defeated. He hardly believed that the Constitution was the proper place for such proposition. He defended the reformatories in an able manner, saying that they were simply tradeschools, and that their inmates were not criminals, but were expected to turn out good citizens.

Mr. Springweller read a long protext against prison labor and for the amendment of Mr. McDonough of behalf of labor organizations.
